

SOFT COAL WALKOUT GRIPS NATION

RUSSIA SHIES
AT REPORTING
ON HER ARMYMOLOTOV APPROVES
ACCOUNTING FOR ALLIED TROOPS

BY FRANCIS W. CARPENTER
Lake Success, N. Y., Nov. 20 (AP)—Vyacheslav M. Molotov, Russian foreign minister, accepted today a United States proposal for a full accounting of Allied troops on former enemy territories but shied away temporarily from a United States demand that the Soviet Union make a complete report on all Red forces, at home and abroad.

Molotov included the U. S. proposal in a resolution he placed before the 54-member U. N. political committee at a two-hour meeting. The resolution called on any of their troops and bases on alien soil, including former enemy countries.

The Soviet foreign minister said that the United States proposal for reports from United Nations members on all mobilized forces at home and abroad, should be taken up when the Russian arms limitation plan is discussed later. He then sat silent when U. S. Senator Tom Connally (D-Tex.), chairman of the foreign relations committee of the Senate, demanded that Russia report on all her troops at home as well as abroad.

Cards Laid On Table
Molotov and Connally, however, exchanged verbal broadsides on the question of American troops stationed away from home. Molotov charged that the "presence of Allied troops in foreign territories many months after the end of the war cannot fail to arouse the natural uneasiness of the friendly peoples of those countries where foreign troops still remain."

Connally snapped back that "the United States categorically rejects as unfounded any contention that the presence of our troops abroad is endangering international peace and security or justified a feeling of uneasiness among the peoples of the world."

Connally, in fact, made a general report on United States forces when he told the committee that the U. S. had 5,000,000 troops abroad at the end of the war and that the present total overseas is 800,000.

"We think that all of the cards should be laid on the table," Connally said.

Ernest Bevin, British foreign secretary, is expected to appear before the committee tomorrow to reply personally for Great Britain.

In all the talk today the speakers referred to reports to the United Nations by members of the U. N. on troops dispositions but it was evident that Russia was hitting directly at the United States and Great Britain and that the United States was calling on Russia to show its hand as well.

Carrier Planes Fly

Washington, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Navy announced today the successful flight-testing of what are believed the two fastest carrier planes in the world.

Jet propelled at speeds "well over 500 miles per hour," the XFJ-1 and the XF6U-1 will put shipboard fighters on a par in performance with the newest land-based fighters, the Navy claimed.

MAN DROWNED
AT NAUBINWAY

Frank Brix, Fisherman,
Falls In Lake While
Lifting Nets

Frank Brix, 38, Naubinway fisherman, was drowned in Lake Michigan Wednesday afternoon. When he fell off the stern of his fishing tug, the Two Sisters, after lifting nets about four miles out of Naubinway.

The tragedy occurred as Brix was starting to pull up his net spreader after lifting nets, and he slipped and fell overboard. A brother-in-law, John Jones, who was working on the boat, made an attempt to rescue Brix, but was unsuccessful, and the man disappeared in the rough waters of the lake. Coast guardsmen from Beaver Island will make a search for the body beginning Thursday morning.

Mr. Brix leaves a widow and three children. He had been a resident of Naubinway for about 15 years.

MAJOR POINTS
SETTLED FOR
FREE TRIESTEFOREIGN MINISTERS
COMPROMISE ON ADRIATIC PORT

BY ALEX H. SINGLETON
New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—The foreign ministers council reached agreement tonight on all but two major points in their long dispute over Trieste—the removal of foreign troops, and the economic administration of the free Adriatic port.

Persons present at the deliberations said that Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov had now agreed to practically everything in the plans for Trieste as the result of two new compromises today.

In achieving these new steps forward, the council settled its argument over who should have supervision over Trieste's future foreign affairs, and who should name the judiciary, informants said.

The western powers have made it plain that they believed the major control should be in the hands of the governor of Trieste who would be appointed and guided by the United Nations Security Council.

Russia, on the other hand, has maintained that the balance of power should rest with the Trieste council of government which, in turn, would be named by the elective assembly.

Two Arguments Remain
Settling their dispute on the city's foreign affairs, the ministers agreed today that the governor should have power to prevent enforcement of treaties in conflict with the laws of Trieste, but ruled that they must be signed jointly by the governor and a representative of the council.

The ministers' argument over the judiciary was settled by a compromise providing that the governor can appoint candidates offered by the council, or from among other persons after consultation with the council.

The two arguments remaining unsettled are these:
1. Russia would strip from the governor's emergency powers the right to use them when he felt that "public order and respect of human rights" are endangered, this would leave the governor authority to use those powers only in the event of a threat from outside Trieste. The western powers have contended consistently that he should have those rights to quell internal disturbance.

2. Russia has sought economic advantages for Yugoslavia under the trade control plan for Trieste, in particular establishment of a Trieste-Yugoslav customs union and joint administration of Trieste railroads. The western powers have taken the position that this would be incompatible to any interpretation of a free port.

Explosion Levels
Palestine Building;
Jews Place Bomb

Jerusalem, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Palestine income tax building was leveled this afternoon by a terrific explosion from a bomb-laden car which Palestine police said was placed by Jews. Police said they detonated the bomb themselves and had miscalculated the strength of the explosive.

Five persons—a British army captain and lance corporal, a British police sergeant and an Arab and Jewish policeman—were injured. Windows were shattered within a radius of three blocks.

All employees had been evacuated from the building following a telephone warning 10 minutes before the blast, which occurred at 3 p. m.

Police said that three Jews, one dressed as an Arab, pushed a bomb-laden, Arab-type delivery cart into the building and fled, after clubbing a Jewish policeman and snatching a rifle from an Arab guard.

Police tried to drag the cart from the building, but the rope parted. They said they then detonated the bomb with rifle fire, but "miscalculated the charge."

Veterans in School
Or Job Training to Get Pay Check Cut

BY VERN HAUGLAND

Washington, Nov. 20 (AP)—Veterans administration officials said today more than half a million veterans in school or job training will find their monthly government checks reduced, eliminated or temporarily held up.

They include:
1. More than 150,000 trainees throughout the country whose payments have been suspended because they neglected to report their earnings by Nov. 5.

2. About 300,000 whose subsistence will be reduced under the G. I. Bill limiting amounts in accordance with size of earnings.

3. About 119,000 whose payments will be chopped off for the same reason. The next pay date is Nov. 30.

VA also disclosed it is spending $1,800,000 on a survey and regular inspection of schools and establishments offering job training. In most cases, the states will do the work.

The VA said it is unable to estimate the amount involved in the suspended accounts. As soon as their reports, the checks will be mailed to them if they qualify for payments.

Those feeling the pinch came under the GI Bill which stipulates that if a veteran's subsistence and job earning exceed $175 a month, without dependents, or $200 with dependents, his allowance must be cut to come within that maximum.

These restrictions do not apply to the 159,389 disabled veterans in job training and educational institutions under public law 16.

H. V. Stirling, assistant veterans administrator for vocational rehabilitation and education, estimated that between 50 and 60 percent of the veterans receiving payments under the GI Bill will have pay check reductions of $5 or more and about 20 percent will go off the rolls altogether.

PARISH SCHOOL

Use Of Public Funds
For Transporting Of Children Disputed

BY PAUL M. YOST

Washington, Nov. 20 (AP)—Supreme court justices listened today to more than two hours of debate on whether public funds might be used to pay for transportation for children to Catholic parochial schools.

A New Jersey taxpayer protested that such use of public funds amounted to public support of a religious establishment. He asserted the practice violated the "fundamental American principle" of separation of church and state.

Counsel for the Exting township, N. J., school board replied that the practice facilitated compliance with the state's compulsory education laws. He argued also that if states may provide text books for public and private schools—as the supreme court unanimously decided in 1930—they should also be permitted to supply transportation.

William H. Speer, of Newark, N. J., counsel for the school board, replied that at least 16 states and the District of Columbia provide some similar form of transportation.

The states, he said included: Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan and Missouri.

The states of New York, Michigan, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Illinois and Indiana and the National Council of Catholic Men and the National Council of Catholic Women filed briefs with the court in support of the validity of the New Jersey law.

Signal Fire Spurs
Hunt In Alps For
U.S. Crash Victims

BY A. I. GOLDBERG

Paris, Nov. 20 (AP)—Reports that the crew of a British transport plane had seen light signals flashed from a mountain ridge in the French-Italian border region spurred new hopes tonight for the rescue of survivors of a disabled U. S. Army C-53 transport which crashed in the wintry Alps Tuesday.

There were 11 Americans aboard the plane which came down in below zero weather.

The British air ministry in London said that a crew member of the British plane reported he had seen a "faint red winking light" as the British aircraft circled at approximately 14,000 feet above the spot where the American plane landed.

Meanwhile, brief radio communication was reestablished with the stricken plane. A radio operator at Istres, near Marseilles, reported intercepting a message which said laconically:

"14:15 hours (2:15 p. m., French Time): Planes passed over us without seeing us."

Bitterly cold weather in the region where the plane came down caused concern for the Americans aboard. According to army sources

Scores Left Homeless
By Explosion; Total
Of 150 Injured

Greenville, S. C., Nov. 20 (AP)—Six deaths were charged today to the gas tank explosion that wrecked the $300,000 Ideal laundry plant here late yesterday with an earth-shaking roar, and damaged dwellings over a two-block area, making scores homeless.

The number of injured was placed at 150. Most of them were not badly hurt but 22 remained in hospitals and six were listed as critical cases.

Red Cross and Salvation Army workers joined other agencies in providing relief for the distressed. Food was supplied the homeless and arrangements were made for repairing damaged residences.

No official estimate was available of the overall property loss. The Greenville newspapers, however, figured it would approximate $1,000,000.

One body was recovered from the debris of the shattered brick laundry building. It was that of W. L. Harbin, 65-year-old plant fireman who had just cut off the gas from a 6,000-gallon fuel tank when the explosion hurled the building into the air and sent fragments flying in all directions.

Pictures of Earth
Taken 65 Miles Up
By Camera in V-2

BY ROBERT GEIGER

Washington, Nov. 20 (AP)—Scientists who sent a motion picture camera aloft in a German V-2 rocket obtained photos of earth at an altitude of 65 miles, they disclosed today.

At this altitude more than one-half of the United States theoretically would have been visible to an observer with unlimited eyesight and unobstructed vision.

The camera, of course, failed to take in this much territory. The best shot was obtained at around 65 miles altitude and covers an estimated 40,000 square miles of earth at the horizon, with the camera around 720 miles away.

It shows clouds between earth and the camera; the earth is distinguishable and the sky and earth may be seen at the horizon. Scientists said the earth's curvature may be noted in this picture.

Some of the other photos were at an altitude too high for landmarks to be distinguishable but some experts believed one photo showed the Boulder Dam and the Colorado river. From an altitude of about 60 miles. Another, at 45 miles, shows a mountain range.

To obtain the pictures, a 35 mm camera with a special magazine containing walls of armor steel one inch thick was placed in the rocket's fuselage. This was to protect the film from damage after exposure.

An explosive charge blew the camera from the falling rocket after it reached the peak of trajectory, and the camera fell 25,000 feet to earth at an estimated 500 feet per second. Equipment was scattered for five square miles but the camera was the first piece recovered. It was damaged beyond use but the film was in "perfect condition," scientists said.

CHICAGO TRAINS

Northbound Electric Hit
By South Shore In Emergency Stop

Chicago, Nov. 20 (AP)—Thirty-eight persons were slightly injured today when a northbound Illinois Central electric train made an emergency stop and was struck in the rear by a Chicago, South Shore and South Bend train.

A spokesman for the I. C. said a Chicago man who wanted to get off at 22nd street, where the train stopped, pressed the emergency stop button twice, which the spokesman said was a universal train signal for an emergency stop. Police said the man was being held without charge.

All of the injured were released at two hospitals.

Patrolman Carl Ohlin of the Des Plaines street police station, a passenger on the South Shore train, said there were about 40 persons in the first car when all brakes were applied and the motorman rushed from his compartment and yelled, "Look out."

Ohlin said the motor man was Harold Dimmick of Michigan City, Ind. No one was reported injured in the Illinois Central train. The front of the South Shore train was dented.

But he warned that Chiang was preparing an attack on Yen'an and added:

"If he attacks he definitely will have closed the door to present or future peace negotiations."

LEWIS FIGHTS
COURT ORDER,
MINERS QUITGOVERNMENT WILL PUNISH DEFIANT
UNION CZAR

Washington, Nov. 21 (Thursday) (AP)—The nation came face-to-face with another crippling soft coal walkout today and the government girded for an attempt to punish silently-defiant John L. Lewis on contempt of court charges.

Lewis, who had served notice Nov. 15 that his contract with the government would be void last midnight, let the deadline come and go without another word, although Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough had issued a restraining order calling on him to cancel the notice.

Citation Means Jail
President Truman, vacationing at Key West, Fla., swiftly instructed Attorney General Clark to press today for a contempt citation against the United Mine Workers chief—a citation which could mean jail or fine, or both.

But there was little doubt that Lewis intended to fight the charge to be hit, in a historic showdown between the government and one of the most powerful labor leaders in the world.

Under the procedure, as outlined by a high authority at Key West, a subordinate of Clark's will go into the federal district court here today. He will argue that Lewis' silence amounts to a strike call—the miners do not work in the absence of a contract—and that therefore Lewis is in contempt of court.

Even before the midnight deadline, 139,710 of the 400,000 bituminous miners had quit work.

Truman Stands Pat
President Truman, it was stated, was not budging one inch from his determination to fight the strike threat every inch of the way.

Lewis' defense was not outlined in advance, but the CIO and AFL, in rallying to his support, gave a hint of its possible nature. They called the restraining order illegal under the Norris-Laguard Act which curbed the use of injunctions in labor disputes.

Lewis himself was not available for comment on President Truman's signal for the great court battle. He has retired to his big white frame house in nearby Alexandria, Va. A reporter who knocked at the door was told by the houseman:

"Mr. Lewis is not to be disturbed."

In later afternoon, Attorney General Clark and Secretary of Interior Krug, the latter the boss of the government-seized mines, held a conference. But they had given out no information then about their course.

Sadist Experiments Of Nazi Physicians Do World No Good

Chicago, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Journal of the American Medical Association editorially today said "not the slightest good has resulted to mankind" as the result of "sadistic" experiments performed by Nazi physicians who will go on trial Dec. 5 at Nuernberg.

The trials involve 23 physicians charged with fatal experiments on human beings. The journal said studies showed "apparently 70 physicians and scientists were involved, although there may have been more."

Dr. A. C. Ivy, vice-president of the University of Illinois, represented the board of trustees of the AMA in an investigation of German war crimes of a medical nature.

Dr. Ivy's report to the secretary of war, the journal said, listed experiments which included introduction of tuberculosis germs into humans and "indecent" experiments in multiple ovulation and conception.

"One series of murders," the journal said, "was done to provide skeletons of an anthropological museum. Operations were done on human beings as part of the procedure in training students in surgical techniques."

Boy 5, Hit By Car; Mother Accused Of Giving Him Whisky

Detroit, Nov. 20 (AP)—A mother accused of giving whisky to her five-year-old son, who was struck by a car, pleaded innocent today to a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

The plea was entered by Mrs. Lucille Moon, 46, who was released under $300 bond pending trial Dec. 6.

Police said Mrs. Moon's son, Willie, told them she "gave me some whisky" before the auto-tricycle accident and receiving hospital physicians said they detected "a slight odor of alcohol" on Willie's breath.

Policewoman Madeline Webster told the court that hospital records showed the child was treated for "acute alcoholism" when he was only three years old.

Mrs. Moon denied giving Willie any whisky but said he "may have taken a few sips" of beer before the accident "when my back was turned."

Blizzards Tie Up Northwestern U. S.

(By The Associated Press)

Raging blizzards hit the Puget Sound country and swept across Montana, Utah, Idaho and part of Nevada yesterday (Wednesday), spreading deep snow and making travel hazardous.

The fresh snowstorm hit Seattle as residents were digging out of Monday's heavy snowfall. City schools failed to open for the third consecutive day, city bus lines were disrupted and airlines cancelled flights.

Many northwestern Montana communities were completely snowbound by the severe storm, sending thermometer readings well below the zero mark.

Strong winds drove the snow across Idaho, dumping more than two feet of snow on the mountain passes between Idaho and Montana. Buses were unable to negotiate the highway crossing the continental divide, and trains were running up to four hours late.

CHICAGO EGGS

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK
Chicago, Nov. 20 (AP)—Eastern shippers largely withdrew from the livestock market today on the possibility of curtailed rail deliveries in face of possible general coal miners' strike, but little reaction was observed in price schedules.

Local packers took up the slack, running butcher hogs up 25 to 50 cents and cows within 50 cents of the record peak established Oct. 15, maintaining steady prices on all classes of cattle, and only dropping sheep 25 to 50 cents a hundred pounds.

Steers topped the cattle run at $26.50 and an increased supply of choice kinds brought up to $25.00. Both steers and heifers showed improved quality, in fact, with heifers topping at $26.00, most getting $18.50 to $20.00, and steers bringing $21.00 to $22.00. Choice yearlings held at $25.00, beef cows up to $16.00, heavy sausage bulls to $16.50, and stock cattle stayed steady.

Most of the hog run sold at the higher market basis but the last 3,000 head lost most of the advance to sell from $24.75 to $24.50. Earlier the bracket on good and choice was $24.85 to $25.10 with a top of $25.25. Choice lightweight hogs brought up to $24.50 with most others getting $24.25. Clearance was good though shippers brought but 1,500 of the 12,000 on sale. Packers brought in 5,000.

Most native and fed woolled western lambs brought $22.75 for good and choice quality. This also was the top. Shorn lambs and yearlings were missing from offerings, but good and choice slaughter ewes dropped 25 cents to $8.25, mediums were $7.50, and cull and common varieties were $6.25 to $6.75.

Total receipts included 11,000 cattle, 800 calves, and 10,500 sheep.

LEWIS FIGHTS COURT ORDER. MINERS QUIT

Lewis ringing expressions of support from the country's two big labor organizations, the CIO and the AFL.

They denounced the court order which Attorney General Clark obtained at the direction of President Truman, as illegal and "enslaving."

President William Green of the AFL, another old mine worker, in a statement which was made available to reporters at Lewis' headquarters, predicted that miners who have walked out will "voluntarily refuse" to return until a new contract is signed.

A new development came with the report that the government is readying an embargo on all freight shipments by rail except for essential commodities.

A transportation official who withheld the use of his name told a reporter that the order will be invoked "in a day or two if the strike comes off."

All commodities except food, clothing, medicines, fuel, etc., would be kept from the trains.

Another government official speaking privately said he feared the possibility of a general demonstration by union members if Lewis should be jailed.

Lewis obviously is out for more pay. The commonly accepted guess is that he wants pay for a 40-hour week equivalent to what miners now get for a 54-hour week. The top now is $75.25.

The Washington Evening Star reported that another demand is an increase to 10 cents in the present 5-cent royalty on every ton of coal for the union's welfare and retirement fund. This would double the annual income from this fund to $56,000,000.

There is now, according to the UMW, about $13,500,000 in the UMW treasury. However, the UMW has never paid strike benefits for the simple reason there are so many miners that the fund would promptly vanish if an attempt were made to spread it around among 400,000 workers and their dependents.

President Truman was said to be ready for decisions he must make if the fight goes on. These could include a call to the army for troops to protect the mines.

The army is ready to send troops to the coal mines in a matter of hours in response to any requests from Secretary of the Interior Krug.

Commanders of specific units have been quietly alerted for an order to carry out the war department's announced commitment to "cooperate fully" with any official call for aid in coping with the walkout by John L. Lewis' miners.

Regular army troops are within overnight reach of West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and most of the 26 other producing states.

The army has 600,000 or more men in uniform in the United States but only a small portion is available for strike duty. Recent economy orders have reduced the "strategic reserve" to less than four divisions although there are scores of lesser units.

Backing these state guards in Pennsylvania, Kentucky, West Virginia and other states.

There has been no suggestion that troops might be used actually to produce coal.

FIELDS IDEL
Pittsburgh, Nov. 21 (Thursday) (AP)—A general walkout apparently began today in the soft coal fields with the expiration of the contract deadline given to the government by the United Mine Workers.

Mines that had been operating steadily until last night began "going down" in the Pittsburgh and Johnstown areas of the Pennsylvania bituminous coal fields.

Operators reported night shifts with several thousand workers failed to report for work at the time they were scheduled to start before Wednesday midnight.

Already work stoppages in the fields had idled approximately 140,000 miners in 13 states prior to the Lewis deadline. This represented more than one-third of the nation's 400,000 UMW members.

Among the mines at which night workers did not start the Thursday work-day were three of the Rochester & Pittsburgh Coal Company's and three of the New York Central railroad's, employing about 2,000. Workers also did not take up their tools at the Republic Steel Company's Indiana, Pa., mine, employing 640, and several smaller properties.

Night workers stood by but did not enter the Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Company's mine at Morgantown, W. Va. They made no comment.

Many mines with midnight shifts in some other areas, already had been closed by the earlier walkouts this week.

Coal miners traditionally do not work without a contract, even though in this instance the government claimed the contract was in full force.

Cutting Trees On State Land Brings Heavy Penalties

Two Marquette county men, Everett Laine and Harley Johnston of McFarland, recently arrested by conservation officers for cutting Christmas trees on state-owned land, have been given stiff penalties following pleas of guilty to the charge in Justice Bjork's court at Gwinn.

Laine was ordered to pay damages of $34, and a fine of $100 and costs. Unable to pay a similar fine, Johnston was sentenced to 30 days in the Marquette county jail.

The men were arrested for cutting the trees on state land three miles north of Stone Falls in Marquette county.

Frank McKay Group Buys Boston Store At Grand Rapids

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 20 (AP)—A group headed by Frank D. McKay, former Republican state leader, today bid successfully for the stock and business of the Boston Store, large department store in the downtown district.

Probate Judge Joseph R. Gillard accepted the offer of McKay and his associates to invest $500,000 in the business and for a 30-year lease on property belonging to the Charles R. Trankla estate, which now operates the business.

Associated with McKay in the new venture are the store's former general manager, Gerald Miller, and his father-in-law, Fred E. Yeakey, former store treasurer. McKay said a new corporation to take over the business would be formed immediately.

Boy, 14, Confesses He Set $15,000,000 Whisky House Fire

Fresno, Calif., Nov. 20 (AP)—District Attorney James M. Thuesen said today that a 14-year-old boy has admitted setting a $15,000,000 bonded warehouse fire south of Fresno August 28, as well as a series of other incendiary blazes here and elsewhere on the Pacific coast.

Thuesen said three arson charges would be filed against the boy, who gave his name as Billy Williams.

The boy told the officers he came to California alone and thus far they have been unable to locate any relatives.

Communists Lead In Romania Vote; Six Persons Slain

Bucharest, Thursday, Nov. 21 (AP)—Romania's Communist-dominated government bloc rolled up an immense lead today over opposition parties in Tuesday's parliamentary elections.

Results from 22 of 58 election districts, including Bucharest, gave Premier Petru Groza's bloc 1,535,513 votes. The opposition vote included: National Peasants, 255,183; Independent Socialists, 28,901; and National Peasant Democrats, 544,719.

The ministry of the interior said that six persons were killed throughout Romania on election day. Many others were wounded.

Packers Are Tops As Ground Gainers

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—Pro football fans may not believe it but the National Football League has statistics to prove that its teams try forward passes only once in every three plays.

Although the figures show the National League pass only 36.3 per cent of the time, the total gains favor forwards with 11,450 yards to 9,626 yards gained rushing.

The Los Angeles Rams, who strike a fine balance between running and throwing, have the best offensive record with an average yardage of 330 per game in eight starts. Second place goes to the Chicago Cardinals with a 325.1 yards average, gained largely through Paul Christman's passing.

In the air the Cards are supreme on a 190.0 yard average but the ground gaining champs are the Green Bay Packers with a 154.3 average. Since Don Hutson retired, the Packers aerial game has all but disappeared.

This season they are essentially a powerhouse team.

The final test of offensive power, point scoring, favors the Cardinals who have piled up 201 points and yielded 164. Green Bay's defenses have held the opposition to only 89 points in eight games.

Explosion Blamed On Faulty Valve At Baroda School

Baroda, Mich., Nov. 20 (AP)—A faulty safety valve caused the Nov. 13 explosion at the Baroda Consolidated school which claimed the life of one pupil and injured 18 others, Prosecutor Karl Zick said today.

Zick today quoted Fire Marshal Arnold C. Renner as saying an official investigation has completely cleared 16-year-old Eldon Nitz, substitute fireman on the day of the blast.

Baroda Township Fire Chief Edward Fleisher substantiated the official investigation's conclusion of a faulty safety valve. He said he discovered the missing valve in the debris Tuesday and said it had not opened.

Zick said he is convinced the blast was accidental.

Stowaway On Liner Gives Birth To Girl

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—There was only one stowaway on the Ile De France when the liner left Europe, but there were two when it docked here today.

Lee Paneth, 20, gave birth to a girl in the ship's hospital after being discovered last Friday.

Mother and daughter, both well, were taken to Ellis Island.

Why Bert Won First Prize

Folks weren't surprised when Bert Childers won first prize for his corn at the county fair.

Yet the judges admit it wasn't just because Bert had the finest ears of corn. He knew how to display them: neatly arranged, with the husks cleanly trimmed, and the booth white and spotless.

"Trimmin's" sure make a difference no matter what you're offering—as Andy Botkin, keeper of the Garden Tavern, well knows. Andy doesn't just sell good beer. He sells it in a place that's clean and attractive...in nice surroundings that belong with the enjoyment of a wholesome beverage of moderation.

And Andy, of course, is a wholehearted supporter of "Self Regulation." That's the system by which the Brewers and tavern keepers themselves make sure that taverns selling beer are clean and orderly.

From where I sit, people like Andy also rate a "First prize." Not just for the quality of the product—but for the "trimmin's" too.

BELIEVE DEER KILL IS HEAVY

Hunting Success High; 1,543 Bucks Taken Across Straits

Although it was reported yesterday from district conservation headquarters in Escanaba that no statistics have yet been prepared on the degree of hunting success so far this season, hunters themselves were of the opinion that the past six days has brought an unusually high number of deer killed.

One party of five Indiana hunters, all of whom had bagged bucks since the season opened, yesterday passed through Escanaba enroute to their home. There were other reports of all members of hunting parties filling their licenses although the season is not yet a week old.

At the Straits of Mackinac 1,543 deer, 27 bear, two bobcats, and one each of wolf, coyote and fox were reported by the conservation department to have been transported south to midnight Tuesday. In addition to the hunters taking their quarry out of the U. P. by way of the Straits, additional hundreds of hunters have gone back through Wisconsin.

Among the recent arrests for violations of the deer laws reported by the district conservation office were the following:

Jerry Miller, Toledo, who pleaded guilty in Justice Walters court at Munising to purchasing a resident license while being a non-resident, and paid a fine of $25 and costs.

Lawrence and Basin Davis of Mt. Pleasant, arrested Monday near Arnold for headlighting, paid fines of $10 and costs each after pleading guilty in Justice Bjork's court at Gwinn.

Leon Foster and W. C. Miller of Gladstone, fined $35 and costs each in Justice Estenson's court after pleading guilty to a charge of headlighting Monday night north of Dutch Mill.

Hunter To Submit To Lie Detector

Crystal Falls—Steadfastly maintaining his innocence, Gust Hantula, 35, Amasa, suspect in the fatal shooting, last Friday afternoon, of his hunting companion, Wayne Maki, 31, also of Amasa, was released from custody last night by Sheriff King after he agreed to submit to a lie detector test at Lansing.

Hantula, who before King, Prosecutor Symmonds and Cpl. Carstensen, of the state police, constructed his story of how he and Maki went hunting last Friday afternoon—claiming he did not fire a shot—will be taken to Lansing as soon as arrangements can be completed. The polygraph is at the headquarters of the state police there.

Hantula said: "Sure, I'll face the lie-detector. I'm not one bit afraid, because I'm telling the truth."

King, Symmonds and Carstensen spent seven hours yesterday and last night on the case, and questioning Hantula, who, at every query put to him, said: "No, I did not do it."

Marjorie Davies And Sister Missed Their Hike With Joe

The Davies sisters of Iron River, Marjorie and Lucille, had a date with a personable young man who failed to show at the appointed hour a week ago Friday for a hike along a trap line.

But the attractive young women didn't mind. The young man was Senator-elect Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin and the place was the Gateway hotel at Land O' Lakes where the sisters are employed as cashiers. Marge in the gift shop and Lucille in the dining room.

The young Appleton circuit judge was so tucked out after his 80,000-mile campaign tour that he slept in until noon and through sheer fatigue was unable to keep the 8 a. m. date.

He arrived at the Gateway on the day after election and spent a leisurely six days. Into those days he packed a lot of sleeping and eating, visits with Republican supporters throughout the north, some hikes, duck hunting and fishing.

He went for a 14 mile hike through the woods with some friends who feared he would be tired out from the jaunt. But the former marine bounced in feeling fresh, while his companions came in puffing. The former marine was a boxing coach at Marquette university and he was in condition despite his exhausting job of stumping the 71 counties of Wisconsin which elected him senator by a thumping majority of 250,000.

U. S. Vs. Lewis

REGARDLESS of the outcome of the current bituminous coal labor dispute, the nation must be thoroughly convinced by now that a few autocratic labor leaders, of which John L. Lewis is the most striking example, do possess the power to choke the country's economic life at will in order to force their own demands.

Lewis has done it three times within the past 14 months and each time he has gained a tighter hold on the nation's throat. A. F. Whitney, head of the railroad trainmen, and Alvanley Johnston, of the railroad engineers, collaborated to do the same thing last spring.

Close down the coal mines or stop the trains and you have a situation in which the economic life of the United States must come to a halt. The power of one man, John L. Lewis in this case, to open and close the gates of economic life in the United States at his own will is a power that the nation cannot long endure.

It is difficult to imagine thousands of laborers blindly following the dictates of a power-mad, wholly irresponsible individual like John Lewis, even when obedience to those commands are harmful to their own cause. The union gained temporary strength as a result of those strikes but the individual miners have lost nearly 60 days in payroll already this year. Now they face the loss of more time. The nation, of course, faces even greater loss.

Lewis has carried this thing too far and the public has no choice except to break his hold on the nation's throat.

Better Mail Service

RESIDENTS of 17 towns along an 181-mile route between Union, Miss., and Mobile, Ala., are rejoicing over the recent installation of highway postoffice, which now provides them with a greatly improved mail service. For some time, the people in that region were without a satisfactory postal service because of the discontinuance of railroad trains.

The highway postoffice is a large bus, equipped like a railway mail car, and is manned by two men, a driver and postal clerk. While the bus is in motion, the clerk sorts the mail for delivery at post-offices along the route.

The highway postoffice service was inaugurated between Washington, D. C. and points in Virginia before the war. There are now a half dozen routes in various parts of the country, including two in the Lower Peninsula of Michigan. There are a number of isolated communities in the Upper Peninsula that would welcome this type of postal service.

Burying the Hatchet

THAT time heals all wounds is shown by the new French timetables, which are listing through daily passenger train service from Paris to Berlin. This is the first schedule of the kind since 1939.

The Berlin train leaves Paris each night at 10 p. m. for Betz, Mayence, Frankfurt and the German capital. The tables say that trains are better and schedules faster than before the war. Reopening of the Mont Cenis tunnel through the French Alps, closed to all travel during the war, has made possible resumption of through service to Turin and Rome.

Resumption of Paris-Berlin train service is one sign that Europe is being restored to peacetime activity, and that business will eventually go on as usual. The war has brought only destruction to Europe, and probably settled nothing. One wonders why wars are ever allowed to start in the first place. The whole thing doesn't make sense.

The Death of Europe

AMERICAN surveyors of the European scene are returning in pessimistic mood, after surveying what was once the glory of the earth. A few travelers have found glimmers of hope in the situation, but they are very few.

"Europe is writhing in its death throes," says Paul Hutchinson, managing editor of a Chicago magazine. "It has been wounded beyond hope of recovery, and its end is at hand. The physical destruction, tremendous as it is, constitutes a minor problem. What will repair the inward damage, the spiritual destruction? Nothing."

"Something has happened to Europe's ideas of honor, of morality, of faith and hope which goes so deep that no restorative power now in evidence can measure up to the task of restoration. There is a spiritual calamity in England, the public acceptance of its Labor Government's slave trade in German war prisoners. But England's spiritual plight cannot be compared with what has befallen the rest of Europe, which is peopled today by millions who have been brutalized by a war waged with the ferocity of the jungle, and other millions torn up by the roots and thrown out on the roads to live by their wits.

"The Tory parties are finished, and the traditional social democratic parties are old and tired and timid. Everywhere in Europe the Communists are the party with driving power. They seem to know what they're trying to do, and they act like men who really believe in their offer of salvation."

"The old Europe cannot recover. It has been destroyed. Most of its people are living in misery and fear, and they are becoming the creatures of despair or apathy or desperation. The first Atomic War to keep the Communists from unifying the continent, will desolate the latter for many generations. And if the riches of America are finally exhausted in that struggle, the America we know can hardly survive."

Conservation In Norway

PULP and paper mills, sawmills and woodworking factories, along with logging operations, provide a livelihood for one-eighth of Norway's population, according to Waldemar Opsahl, assistant chief forester of Oslo, who is now on tour to study the mechanization of America's lumbering industry.

Norway has a thriving forest industry, and it is not threatened by any scarcity of timber supply, thanks to a well-organized and well-enforced conservation program that has been in operation for one and a half centuries. Conservation ideas, which are still in the controversial stage in this country, have been long accepted in Norway.

Norway has sustained its forests by practicing selective cutting for years, supplemented by extensive tree planting. Each county in Norway has a forester, and private timberland owners must consult him regarding their tree cutting plans. Reforestation on private land is also subsidized by the Norwegian government, which pays half the cost of tree planting. Incidentally, more than sixty per cent of the forests remain under private ownership, even though the government has exercised strict forestry control for many decades.

Still, the Norwegians are among the most freedom-loving people in the world, as their heroic struggle to rid themselves of the Nazi yoke during the war so well demonstrated.

FISH AND PHEASANTS (Sault Ste. Marie News)

It would be a wonderful economic and recreational asset to the Northern Peninsula if it could do with fish and ruffed grouse what South Dakota is doing with pheasants.

Thousands of out-of-state hunters pay $20 a head and spend thousands of other dollars to hunt in South Dakota because they are practically assured of getting the limit of birds.

South Dakota can thank three things for the condition: First, plenty of farmland feed that farmers plant and cultivate and of which the birds manage to get their share; propagation program that began 40 years ago; and one of the best pheasant climates in the world.

Similar conditions prevail in the Southern Peninsula of Michigan and pheasants thrive, although they have their ups and downs and the native hunting pressure is much higher than in Dakota. In the Northern Peninsula pheasant experiments failed because of snow. The pheasant is a ground feeder and is starved when a foot or two of snow cover the ground.

That leaves the grouse for us, a sportier bird than the pheasant. But the grouse, too, must have feed and there are no altruistic farmers or sportsmen willing to spend time and money on grouse feeding areas, so it seems. This is partly responsible for our scarcity of pheasants. We have the territory and the climate. We do not have enough feed.

The same things are true of trout. Planting trout is not enough. Fish like any other creature must have food. If food in a mile of stream is sufficient for 5,000 trout, it does not mean 50,000 adult trout will thrive there. It becomes a simple matter of arithmetic.

The problem as it seems to us is to have more feed in our streams for fish and in our woods for grouse. Areas for planting grouse feed are unlimited, but even the best of a limited number of streams are capable of supporting only so much vegetable or insect life, and still be trout water.

IS A MOTOR AN ENGINE?

Bakersfield: My husband, a member of the Army Air Corps for three and one-half years, insists that there is a definite distinction between a motor and an engine. A motor, he says, is powered by an outside force (electricity), while an engine creates its own power from heat or combustion within itself. He seems to be right in saying that Air Corps men never speak of an airplane or automobile engine as a "motor." But the dictionaries I have consulted do not draw so fine a distinction between the words.—Mrs. H. E. C.

Answer: Let's start with the literal meaning of the words. An engine is: Any mechanical contrivance or tool. A motor is: A source of mechanical power.

There are many other dictionary definitions, but it is worthy of note that a motor is defined as "any internal-combustion engine."

However, your husband is correct in stating that, in Air Corps usage, a plane is powered by engines. A plane also is equipped with several motors (electric) which take their power from the engines' generators.

Because of the large number of airmen and ex-airmen now among us, the clear distinction between engine and motor will surely be increasingly observed by the Washington—The hot seat in the new Republican Senate will be the chairmanship of the committee on education and labor. Who will occupy that seat is still a perplexing question that may split the Republican majority before it is really answered.

Childs

If the logic of seniority is observed, the post will go to Sen. George Aiken, who runs a prosperous business in plants and flowers at Putney, Vt., founded on his original interest in wild flowers, would like to be chairman of the senate agriculture committee.

Aiken is virtually the senior Republican on the senate education and labor committee, which will get the controversial new labor bills that congress intends to take up soon after the session convenes. Or, rather, he ranks next under Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio. But Taft is certain to continue as chairman of the Republican steering committee, which means that he will be the real boss of the senate. Taft is also eligible for the chairmanship of the powerful finance committee. By past tradition, therefore, he would give way to Aiken on the labor committee.

—TAFT ALSO INTERESTED—

However, Taft has said he may take the latter office, too. That is because Aiken is known to be a Liberal, who does not go along with the right wing of the party now dominant in the councils of the GOP. This independent Vermont vote against the Case bill, for example.

Aiken believes he is entitled to the labor committee chairmanship. He would take it in place of agriculture. If he does not get it, there will be deep resentment among the Republicans in Congress who regard themselves as Liberals. Aiken, at the same time, has made it plain that he would not let his own views influence his judgment as chairman of the committee. In other words, he would not try to block, by virtue of his position, consideration of bills that seemed to have general support.

One of the interesting questions to be answered after January 3 is just how much influence the Liberal bloc inside the top-heavy Republican majority will actually have. Skeptics believe it will be largely a nuisance bloc, producing much sound and fury but incapable of checkmating the Conservatives and reactionaries who want to punish labor.

RESTRICTIVE LAWS SEEN—

Speaking on an AFL broadcast after the election, Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, a most articulate champion of Liberalism and also a member of the education and labor committee, gave his assurance that the new congress would not pass unduly restrictive laws. He mentioned specifically the Case bill.

Shortly before he left for a tour of Europe the other day, I asked Morse to name the Republican senators who could be counted on to vote against such restrictive measures as the Case bill, with its long cooling-off period before a strike could be called. First, he made it plain that he is in favor of revision of the Wagner Act and in favor of a law which would prohibit jurisdictional strikes. Organized labor must accept these correctives, in his view.

But when it came down to naming Republican Senators who would stand up and be counted against restrictive legislation, Morse was hard put to it. Among Republicans carried over or re-elected, he included Senators Aiken, Tobey of New Hampshire, Knowland of California, Saltonstall of Massachusetts, and Langer of North Dakota. Among the incoming senators, he listed Gain of Washington, Flannery of Vermont, Lodge of Massachusetts, Ives of New York, Thye of Minnesota, and Malone of Nevada. That adds up to 11 votes, and some are questionable. To this number might be added the new Republican senator from Kentucky, John S. Cooper, who was supported by the Liberal Louisville Courier-Journal.

Counting all possible Democrats who could be expected to oppose drastic anti-labor legislation, you come out with the figure 19. Thirty or 31 votes is far short of a majority, and Morse is likely to find it very difficult to live up to his pledge to the AFL.

But before these votes are counted, the Republicans themselves will have to decide how they are going to resolve the differences within their own party. If they pass over Aiken and if Taft assumes the important chairmanship of the labor committee, in addition to his job as working boss of the new majority, it will be a clear signal that the so-called Liberal Bloc will be on the outside looking in. It will mean that the conservatives and reactionaries are convinced they are set so solidly that they can ignore the dissenting minority.

But some usages appear to be here to stay: fire engine, for any fire department vehicle; engine of war, for any destructive device; motorboat; for any small, powered boat; outboard or inboard motor; motorcycle; motor car (mostly British); motorist; motor league.

In this connection, it may be well to emphasize again that there is no such word as "airplane." The original word, and the form still preferred by the British, is the hybrid aeroplane, pronounced: AY-er-oh-plane. Following World War I, the U. S. armed forces, Bureau of Standards, etc., adopted "airplane" as the official American word, and "airplane" is the only spelling sanctioned by the U. S. Style Manual. Pronounce it: AIR-plane.

PICTURING A STATE—The J. L. Hudson company of Detroit is sponsoring a project to put Michigan in pictures. The company, which operates one of the state's largest department stores, has commissioned 10 of the nation's leading artists to depict in oil and water color "all phases of the contemporary Michigan scene."

Dunathan

More than 80 paintings will be completed by the 10 artists over a period of one year. Obviously even in 80 paintings it will require a careful choice of subject matter to obtain representation of all phases of contemporary life in this state.

It is equally obvious that the Michigan scene might have been more factually and completely told through a series of thousands of photographs. Presumably the cost of making a photographic record of Michigan life would have been less than will the labors of 10 top-flight artists for one year.

THE DIFFERENCE—What, then, is the Detroit company buying that could not be obtained in a series of photographs? Why should 10 artists spend a year dabbling in oils, in watercolors and with drawings when a couple of photographers could do the job in a matter of a few months?

The only explanation is that artists of the brush and palette can combine elements representative of more than one phase of life. The camera is a factual instrument, with definite limitations, whereas the artist with his imagination and understanding is without limit in the scope of his accomplishment. The old masters in painting depicted everything from heaven to hell, often with astounding realism. Photographers would consider such an assignment a trifle difficult, to say the least.

NO REVIVAL—Perhaps the art department of the Hudson company has a commercial interest in the production of the artists they are commissioning. There may be the conviction that if the Michigan scene is adequately and artistically presented there will be a demand for copies of the originals—some of the manner of the millions of Blue Boys. Stag at Bay, Washington Crossing the Delaware, and End of the Trail pictures which are found all too often on American living room walls.

If the Hudson company believes that it can interest the average Michigan citizen in something new and alive, rather than the tried and tiresome reproductions of hackneyed pictures, it will probably be doomed to disappointment.

Nothing changes slower than acceptance of new pictures. The family that will purchase a streamlined radio, a new refrigerator, and the latest of shiny mechanical gadgets will invariably balk at something new in pictures. They like pictures that pass without comment, but they like company to notice and exclaim over their taste in wallpaper.

THOSE FLOWERS—There are fads and fancies in decorative pictures. At one time it was for the picture that "told a story." The little boy catching a big fish while the man with fancy equipment is unsuccessful, the butterfly lighting on the finger of the golden-haired little girl—you remember all of them.

Then suddenly the story-telling pictures were removed from the walls of the "modern" living room and in their place went up some of the most monstrous flowers that ever bloomed in the hot-house of an artist's imagination. These stylish expressions of the moment were carefully centered on the wall space back of davenport in millions of homes all over America. They were as individual as peas in a pod, and as inspiring as only a paper flower can be.

FOR EACH COMMUNITY—

Perhaps the example being set by the big department store company in Detroit might induce other firms to do likewise. The smaller firms, of course, could not commission the nation's noted artists to paint for them, but there might be he possibly that they could encourage struggling artists to turn out more work, knowing that their pictures would be sold.

As in all things, the man who works is entitled to his pay. With artists these days—except for those in the commercial field—it is a period of virtual stagnation in the picture market. People have more money to spend for the so-called luxuries than they have ever had before, but pictures are not even listed among the wanted luxuries.

When we speak of pictures, of course, we are referring to originals. Many people will pay what the artist would consider an out-

Q. My sister's child was killed while engaged in basic training. He was in service only a short while and his mother was recently advised that she may be entitled to a monthly compensation payment for his death in the service, since she has little income other than his National Service Life Insurance. Is it necessary that she engage an attorney to file the claim for her?

A. It is not necessary for the parent of a serviceman to pay legal fees for an investigation of a death compensation claim. The service officer of any recognized veteran's organization will assist the dependent (s) of a veteran without charge even though he was not a member of the organization.

Q. Is the Army accepting registrants qualified only for limited service?

A. Under current policy, inductions under Selective Service have been suspended until January 1, 1947. The Army prefers men qualified for full service, and when calls are again resumed, local boards will call selectees 19 through 29 years of age who can meet the physical standards for general military service. However, when all available registrants have been ordered to report for induction, a board then calls men qualified for military service (sometimes referred to as "limited service").

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

Washington—Senate and House Republican leaders exuded harmony on most things in their secret caucus last week, but there was some strong punching and counter-punching on the question of taxes.

The debate illustrates the fundamental difference between House Republicans and their counterpart in the senate. While GOPEERS in the house have been waving their arms about cutting taxes, more statesmanlike leaders in the senate have urged a go-slow policy, all of which came to a head in the GOP caucus last week.

When it was over, Raucus Harold Knutson of Minnesota chairman-to-be of the Ways and Means Committee, which initiates tax legislation, was wearing a meek and subdued expression.

Knutson had hopes of selling Senate GOP leaders on sweeping tax reductions, but Senators Bob Taft of Ohio and Styles Bridges of New Hampshire quickly disillusioned him.

The cocky Minnesotan opened the secret meeting with a demand that the Republican party commit itself to a 20 per cent, across-the-board cut in Federal Income Taxes.

"The voters want us to cut taxes," said Knutson, "and I think we ought to agree on what we are going to do right now, so we will be ready to press for speedy enactment of a tax bill after January."

Speaker-elect Joe Martin of Massachusetts echoed the same view, but Taft and Bridges insisted that the GOP should first take steps to balance the budget and pare the national debt.

"Before reducing taxes, let's find out, if it is possible to do so, and by how much," declared Taft. "Our first objective should be a balanced budget."

Knutson, who had expected to dominate the tax discussion, finally gave up with a reluctant sigh when he saw he wasn't getting anywhere.

NOTE: Senate GOP leaders have privately agreed that if Knutson is able to steam-roller a tax reduction through the house, it will get a long beauty sleep in the senate finance committee, of which Taft is an important member, until the budget and the national debt are tackled.

—MERRY-GO-ROUND—

The FBI is investigating any link between the Columbians and retired Maj. Gen. George Van Horn Moseley, former Deputy Chief of Staff. Moseley was the idol of the Knights of the White Camellia.

William H. Davis, colorful wartime chief of the war labor board, once fired by Truman, is being invited back to help settle labor troubles arising in steel and other major industries. Others who will be invited to help head off crippling strikes are George Taylor, who succeeded Davis as War Labor Board chairman, Sumner Slichter of Harvard University and Clint Golden of the CIO. Failure to produce artificial limbs for veterans has induced Reconversion Director John Steelman to set up a special committee to break this bottleneck. Iwo Jima hero Gen. Graves B. Erskine will head the committee. Best private job of breaking this bottleneck has been done by 3rd army hero Col. Bob Allen, who has been working in close cooperation with Secretary of War Patterson.

Housing czar Wilson Wyatt will soon uncoil a new plan to build apartment houses all over the country to house veterans, although price controls have been ended, more than 10,000 ceiling violation cases are still pending. OPA intends to prosecute each of them. About nine of every ten cases involve damages, with criminal charges in the tenth case.

—U. S. HUGS VETO—

The American delegation's recent flip-flop on the veto at the United Nations was no accident. Here is the inside story.

For weeks, U. S. diplomats have poured cold water on the Russians for demanding their right to veto. Despite this, Senator Tom Connally of Texas made a speech for continuing the veto. However, the gentleman from Texas was not acting on his own. His speech was carefully prepared and discussed in detail during inter-council meetings of the state department.

At these sessions, it was pointed out that the Communists were now the strongest party in France, that Communists might come into power in China, and that British labor is rebelling at Bevin's Anti-Russian policy. Therefore, the United States might find the veto shoe on the other foot. Instead of Russia being outvoted at council sessions, the United States might find itself in the minority and anxious to fall back on the veto.

In other words, as long as France, Britain and China were certain to line up with the USA, we were quite willing to change the veto. But now that things are swinging the other way, we aren't.

—FROM THE DIPLOMATIC POUCH—

William Burden, now Assistant Secretary of Commerce, may be the new assistant secretary of state for air. This is the same William Burden who contributed $1,000 to the Democrats in 1944 and another $1,000 to the Republicans. There's nothing like playing both sides of the street. Secretary of State Jimmy Byrnes has been seriously considering breaking diplomatic relations with Roumania, Hungary and Jugoslavia—a drastic step—if those countries continue to ignore the rights of American citizens. The British Foreign Office has been moving heaven and earth to prevent Marshal Tito from dealing direct with the Left-Wing Italian government regarding Trieste.

C&NW ACQUIRES SELDEN HOUSE

Stambaugh Home To Be Used As Hotel For Workers

Stambaugh—Guy M. Cox, Iron River realtor, Tuesday announced that the Chicago and North Western Railway company has purchased the former William H. Selden, Sr., house on Selden road, now owned by Mrs. Marie L. Roman, to be used as a hotel and rooming house for railroad men who arrive in the Stambaugh yards on freight, logging and iron-ore runs.

Cox returned yesterday from Chicago, where he closed the deal with railroad officials. Purchase of the Roman property means, it was explained, that the railroad has abandoned plans to erect a new building near the yards.

The building will be remodeled and opened next spring. The Romans and others now living in the house plan to move out next March.

Inspected Property

Railroad officials here two weeks ago inspecting the property were Ralph Struthers, assistant engineer; C. Wright, architect; Harry Kirk, Escanaba, trainmaster, and Col. C. J. Freeman, chief of the land division in Chicago.

Plans are to convert the basement into a restaurant; the first floor as a lounge and sleeping rooms and the second floor for rooms. There will be 18 sleeping rooms, lavatories and showers.

The lunch room at the Stambaugh yards now is conducted by Mr. and Mrs. August Sorby, who, Cox said, may also be given a contract to operate the new lunch room in the former Selden home, an old landmark in the

State Will Start Building Program

Marquette—The building committee of the state administrative board today instructed A. N. Langius, state building director, to proceed with taking bids and letting contracts for the Northern Michigan College of Education women's dormitory and union building and other educational and hospital projects.

Thus the committee lifted shadows which had been cast on the state's $30,000,000 post-war emergency building program by passage of two constitutional amendments at the November 5 election.

Previously, Langius had said he would delay the program because of financial difficulties raised by passage of the sales tax diversion and veterans' bonus amendments.

Lieut. Gov. Vernon J. Brown, member of the building committee, contended the committee had no right to cancel a program authorized by the legislature as long as funds held out. He asserted some portion of the states surplus would be available to proceed with the program this year, even though the amendments force curtailment of it later.

The legislature appropriated $30,000,000 for $41,000,000 worth of construction, promising the remainder at the 1947 session. Langius has contended that an additional $25,500,000 will be needed because of higher construction costs.

Projects which had been affected by his decision to delay the program included, in addition to the NMCE building, a Wayne university classroom building, the new Northville state hospital, a physical education building at the Michigan College of Mining and Technology, a tuberculosis sanatorium at Houghton and a power plant at the Traverse City state hospital.

With The Deer Hunters

George Bradway, 15, Cornell, Rt. 1, killed a 10 point buck Saturday morning at seven o'clock while hunting on his father's farm. The deer weighed over 200 pounds.

Cecil E. Moore, Manistique, and his son Leslie of Gladstone, filled their licenses late on Sunday while hunting at the Percy Walker camp in the Manistique territory.

At least four deer are hanging on the buck pole at Camp 21 on the Baker Creek. Mike Greis and Mel Roberts filled up on the opening day. Pete Ethier connected on Monday and Harland Yeland had one for the pole on Tuesday. Willie Chartrand shot a buck late Saturday and hung him up in the woods. When he went back for him the next day he found only the head and hooves—signs indicated that a bear had made a meal off the rest of the animal.

Ray Jensen shot a 162 pound, nine pointer, on Sunday morning but that deer does not hang on the buck pole. It is already cut up and distributed among friends.

Council Decides Tonight On Fire Station Closing

The Escanaba city council in regular meeting tonight is scheduled to make "a definite decision" whether fire station No. 2 in North Escanaba is to be closed permanently or reopened. The station has been closed temporarily as a "test", according to City Manager A. V. Aronson.

Petitions asking that the station be reopened and maintained in the future have been received by the city clerk. They were signed by scores of residents of North Escanaba, and by industries located in that section of the city.

Other business scheduled to come before the council includes the following:

Consideration of recommendations by the city civil service commission in regard to salary increases for the city employees.

Recommendation of the Escanaba city board for the appointment of a new band director.

Consideration of releasing of forty acres of city-owned land just outside the city limits on US-241.

First Isle Royale Child Is Stricken

Ishpeming—Mrs. Anna Carlson, 71, first white child born on Isle Royale, died Monday in Grand Rapids. She had been ill four years, following a paralytic stroke.

She was born June 6, 1875, in Isle Royale, where her father, Charles Fagerberg, was employed in one of the early commercial mining ventures. This summer Isle Royale was dedicated as a national park.

Eugene Carlson, a son residing at 756 Park street, Ishpeming, said he knew little of the experience of the family and his mother had only a hazy memory of the island. The family left there when she was five years old.

Other members of the family, however, he said, told them occasionally of some of the hardships endured. The families had to go to the island in early fall and remain until spring. One of the stories, Carlson said, is that of his grandfather, Charles Fagerberg. He was injured while working on Isle Royale and when his wound was sewed up an ordinary darning needle was used.

The Fagerbergs moved off the island in 1880, going to Michigan, where they resided for 10 years. From there they came to Ishpeming. Anna Fagerberg was married October, 1896, to Victor Carlson, who died three years ago.

Mrs. Carlson suffered a stroke four years ago and had been unable to walk since. Two years ago she was taken to Grand Rapids to reside with a daughter, Mrs. Verne Striker.

Marion White, 80, died at his home in Hermansville at 12:30 a. m. Tuesday morning. He was born at Marshall, Ill. on Oct. 5, 1866 and came to Hermansville in 1919. He was affiliated with the Methodist church there.

Mr. White is survived by five sons, Jacob, Riverton, Wyo.; Cecil, Iron Mountain; Lee Roy, Spruce Pine, N. C.; Orin, USA, Germany; and Charles, Urbana, Ill., and two daughters, Mrs. Mable Hook, Grand Rapids, and Mrs. Gertrude Thomas of Chicago. He is also survived by ten grandchildren.

The body will lie in state at the Strandt funeral home at Daggett from 1:30 p. m. today until 12:30 on Friday when it will be taken to the church. Funeral services will be on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Methodist church of Hermansville with Rev. Charles Swanson officiating. Burial will be at the Hermansville cemetery.

Keep Windshields Clear, Motorists Advised by Chief

One of the most important safety factors for the motorist is to be sure that he has clear vision through his windshield at all times, Police Chief M. F. Ettenhofer said yesterday. This is particularly important in fall and early winter driving weather, when sleet and snow may cover windshields.

Windshields should be kept clean, and stickers should not be placed where they will obscure vision. During mist, fog and snow speed should be reduced. Car headlights should be kept down on the road so there will be less reflection. Tail lights should be kept in repair so they will be clearly visible from behind.

In night driving care should be taken not to travel faster than the speed at which you could halt your car within the range of the lights. If driving far, the air in the car should be freshened occasionally. Do not drive when you are sleepy.

Pedestrians also have a responsibility in following recommended safety practices.

Always walk on the left side of the roadway, cross only at intersections. Do not jay walk. When walking on the highway at night dressed in dark clothing, tie a white handkerchief around your right arm to make yourself more easily seen by drivers.

Rev. McConaughy
Urges Free Use of The Imagination

Quoting Napoleon as once having said: "Imagination rules the world," Rev. N. U. McConaughy of Iron Mountain, urged the use of imagination in an inspiring talk at Tuesday's meeting of the Manistique Women's club.

"Concrete proof of the power of imagination is the invention of the fluoroscope, television, and radar," he said. "Imagination is used to spread both good and evil, and misused, it spreads bitterness and hatred."

"When used correctly, imagination helps us to put ourselves in the place of others for better understanding of their problems. With such a change of heart, the race problems of labor and management can be solved. Regardless of party affiliations, we can use imagination to be more sympathetic with the present day problems of people in public office, especially those of President Truman."

"People who faint at the sight of blood are prone to assassinate others with their tongues. We need four-wheel brakes on our tongues," he emphasized. "Before we repeat a statement, we should check these four brakes:

"Are we positive that the statement is true? Is it said about the right person to the right person? Will it do any good to say it? Is it said in the kindest way?"

"Imagination helps us to understand God who uses power with justice, mercy and love. We can change the world and make it what God wants us to make it," he concluded.

For the musical portion of the program Miss Alice McConaughy sang "Thanks Be To Thee" and "Bless This House." She was accompanied on the piano by Miss Kohtanen.

During the business session Mrs. William Norton gave a report on the choice of children's books as gifts and various children's books were on display at the meeting.

Mrs. Elwood Taylor gave a welfare committee report.

Schooling Benefits
Arranged for 246
Vets by Counselor

A total of 246 veterans have been assisted by the Schoolcraft county council of veterans affairs in applying for educational benefits since Jan. 21, 1946. It was revealed in a report made by Leonard J. Mulhaupt, veterans' counselor.

At present there are six veterans taking special trade courses in schools of other states under the GI Bill of Rights. In January of this year there was only one firm in the city that had applied for approval as a training institution for veterans in apprenticeship but there are now 30 firms that are either training veterans or are in the process of being approved, either for apprenticeship or on-the-job training, the report stated.

Veterans hospitalized either locally or out-state from this county total 43. This includes hospitalization at Dearborn, Grand Rapids, Ft. Custer, Ann Arbor, and Marquette, Mich., or in Green Bay and Woods, Wis., either by the Veterans' administration, State of Michigan Office of Veterans Affairs or the State Board of Control for Vocational Rehabilitation.

Emergency cases alone for non-service connected disabilities numbered 17 or 16 per cent of all veterans discharged from this county. Schoolcraft county ranks fourth highest of the counties of the Upper Peninsula for this service. The total savings to veterans amounts to three thousand one hundred and seventy dollars ($3,170.00). Of the 43 hospitalization cases four were veterans of World War I. Several veterans at present are awaiting notice to report to Ann Arbor for beds, the report said.

Other activities of the Schoolcraft County Council of Veterans' Affairs were reported as follows:

Fifty-five national service life insurance policies were re-instated and 13 converted to other types of government insurance. There were 67 new claims for disabilities.

A total of 12 veterans were assisted in obtaining tax refunds and exemptions. The return to each veteran amounted to an average of about $100. Sixty-four veterans were assisted in obtaining priorities for building and materials.

Several individual cases were cited in the report showing how the office helped those unaware they were entitled to benefits. One was a widow who received $728 in back pay and another $358. A veteran receiving but 30 per cent disability is now getting 100 per cent disability pay or $138 per month due to the efforts of the local office.

Sweepstakes Play
At Local Bowling
Alleys Thursday

The annual bowling sweepstakes are open to all bowlers, with games being played on the four alleys all at one time.

The sweepstakes last for only one evening and are enjoyed by hunters from downstate as well as local bowlers.

High scores have been rolled in recent years during sweepstake plays and the evening has generally proved that local bowlers really roll in the top brackets, alley officials said yesterday.

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Elmer Swanson, who died eight years ago today. The dearest son and brother a world could hold.

Pacific Coast Conference And Big 9 Sign 5-Year Rose Bowl Pact

ARMY SQUEEZED OUT OF CLASSIC

Illinois Is Potential Champion To Battle California Team

Berkeley, Calif., Nov. 20 (AP)—The Pacific Coast Conference and the Big Nine of the Western Conference have signed a five-year pact today, but only after a long and bitter struggle. The decision to make the new plan for the Pasadena classic effective at once was admittedly one of expediency to forestall further delay in bringing to fulfillment negotiations which have been in progress for years.

Army was the popular choice of the coast for the coming post-season clash. There was no doubt the Cadets were crowding the picture as representatives of the two conferences met on into the early hours of today before finally agreeing to make their pact effective now, instead of postponing it in favor of Army until January, 1948.

Southern Cal or UCLA
Illinois is the potential champion to meet either Southern California or the University of California at Los Angeles. The Illini have to get past Northwestern Saturday to clinch their claim to Rose Bowl honors. Southern Cal and unbeaten, untied UCLA battle it out in Los Angeles the same day to settle their claims.

Paradoxically, it was Illini who opposed a Western Conference bowl tieup with the Coast Conference. However, Big Nine representatives were unanimous in the opinion that Illinois would go along with the pact signed early today, and which Western Conference schools had endorsed by a majority vote. Only Illinois and Minnesota originally went on record as unfavorable.

The two Southern California title contenders voting against making the pact effective immediately, holding out for Army in the forthcoming bowl game and the Western Conference champion thereafter. They were out-voted 6 to 2. Oregon and Oregon State left before the vote was taken.

The Big Nine representatives had been instructed to present the pact in the form which had been approved for immediate activation, that is—and, had Army been permitted to squeeze in ahead of the Big Nine, a complete referendum would have been necessary.

Sports Editors Bitter
Clinton W. Evans, general manager of the University of California, said:

"Naturally, like a lot of other people here on the coast, I would have liked to have seen Army in the Rose Bowl in 1947. However, since the background for this tieup was laid years ago, it was expedient that we start as soon as possible."

Not so gentle were the sports editors, particularly those of Southern California. Paul Zimmerman, sports editor of the Los Angeles Times, snapped:

"The Pacific Coast Conference has sold its Rose Bowl birthright to the Big Nine for a bundle of high sounding phrases about athletic respectability. The Rose Bowl is dead, long live the Rose Bowl."

Terms of the new pact provide that Big Nine schools nominate one of their own teams for the next three years. For the ensuing years, however, the Western Conference retains an option to nominate any eastern team for the bowl should it feel a more worthy eleven outside the conference was entitled to represent the east.

Both Dr. Freeborn and Big Nine Commissioner Kenneth L. Wilson expected the five-year pact to be only the forerunner of a long-time agreement. The present limited period was described as "just a starter."

Meanwhile, an interim committee started work to set up administrative machinery, set starting dates for Rose Bowl practice, and work out rules and policies.

The committee chairman is Willis O. Hunter, athletic director of Southern California. Other members include Commissioner Victor O. Schmidt of Los Angeles, Michigan Faculty Representative Ralph A. Aigler, and Commissioner Wilson of Chicago.

BY JERRY LISKA
Chicago, Nov. 20 (AP)—Illinois, just one game away from the Big Nine football championship, today appeared ready to forget previous Rose Bowl objections and to march into the Pasadena classic on New Year's Day.

The five-year bowl pact between the Pacific Coast Conference and the Big Nine caught the Illini, who must defeat Northwestern Saturday to clinch the conference crown, in an embarrassing but not inextricable position.

Athletic Director Doug Mills of Illinois today indicated that the Illini, like Minnesota—the one other school which voted against bowl participation—would adhere to "majority rule" in conference policy.

It was learned that if Illinois wins the Big Nine title, Mills and Prof. Frank Richart, chairman of the school's senate athletic committee, would recommend the Illini accept a bowl bid. Richart's committee originally made the recommendation, later adopted by the entire Illinois senate body, that the bowl proposal be rejected.

Michigan Is Possibility
Of course, the whole problem would be averted Saturday if second-place Michigan, an eager bowl beaver, defeated Ohio State in their traditional finale at Columbus, and if Northwestern upset Illinois.

Actually, Illinois has a legal

Football Banquet To Be Dec. 5 at Lutheran Church

The annual Chamber of Commerce football recognition banquet will be held at the Bethany Lutheran church on Thursday, Dec. 5, it was announced yesterday.

Approximately 250 persons, including football players of the Escanaba and St. Joseph high school teams, can be accommodated. Principal speakers will be Bennie Oosterbaan and Jack Blott, of the University of Michigan.

Tickets for the event are now being distributed by a committee consisting of Robert Lemire, chairman; Nick Bink, Ray DeGrand, Charles Hammar, Earl Frechette, Harry Gruber, Vagn Gydensen, Gladwin Oberg, Leslie Olson, Wheaton Strom, O. V. Thatcher, Conrad Finstrom, Don Guindon, Thomas Quinn.

New Shotgun Shell Eliminates Wad To Increase Efficiency

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—High speed photography, developed during the war, has been utilized to produce a shot gun shell that will increase the hunters' efficiency and which its inventors claim is the greatest advancement in shooting since the introduction of the choke bore.

The new shell, announced today, eliminates the cardboard disc which covers or seals the present day shell and replaces it with a water-thin water-proof paper that breaks into segments adhering to the case when fired.

The shell's pellets thus have an uninterrupted flight to the target.

"out" under the bowl program adopted last night. One provision specifies that a Big Nine team cannot be forced into accepting the New Year's Day date. Another puts selection of the Big Nine bowl representative up to the conference as a whole.

Thus, even though the Western Conference would prefer to send its champion to Pasadena, any hesitancy on Illinois' part unquestionably would shove Michigan into the bowl and leave Illini partisans howling against the Illini's athletic administration.

Commissioner K. L. (Tug) Wilson left the door open to a reversal of Illinois policy when he stated officially, before last night's Berkeley meeting, that once the conference has adopted a program, all members swallow individual differences and follow suit.

Believed the motivating reason behind the Big Nine's sudden change of heart towards the Rose Bowl is an effort to establish the New Year's classic as a "closed shop" against schools which do not see eye-to-eye with Big Nine and Pacific Coast on athletic standards.

The Sports Parade

By Ken Gunderman

Despite the natural desire of a majority of football fans in the state to see a continuation of the Michigan-Michigan State football series, we would not like to see the present controversy tossed into the laps of the Michigan legislators, as proposed by Sen. Harry Little of East Lansing. This would serve only to exaggerate the cleavage that now exists and would inject an element of politics into collegiate football that could be extremely harmful. It would seem that the Michigan legislature will have more pressing problems on its hands, come next January, than drafting football schedules.

This sort of thing could be carried to the point of ludicrousness. Let us suppose that Ferris Institute wanted a game with Michigan Tech at Houghton but Tech balked for reasons of its own. The legislative representatives at Big Rapids would carry the issue to the Michigan legislature, pass out a few cigars, and the legislature would adopt a resolution applying the pressure on Tech, a state-supported institution. Now, we ask you, is that the way to build football good will? In a year or two the legislature would organize a committee, the football schedule committee for state-supported institutions.

Howard McKie, Michigan '42, calls attention to an error in this column in Sunday's issue in which it was reported Minnesota held a 13-9 edge over Michigan in their annual football series. McKie reports the teams have played 37 games, of which Michigan has won 22, Minnesota 13 and two games were tied. A second check of the record book confirms McKie's figures. Thus, the Wolverines hold a winning percentage over all of its Western Conference foes, and all non-conference opposition except Cornell and Army. Exceptions are the few teams which the Wolverines have met only once, such as Chicago A. A., Chicago A. C., Cleveland A. A. and Wesleyan, and the few big name schools, including Harvard, Yale and Navy in which the Wolverines have an even break in their series.

Note to bowlers who have been chaffing at the bit because of inadequate bowling news in the Press sports section: Tell your league secretaries to get on the ball. That's the bottleneck. We cannot publish individual averages but are seeking bowling highlights, team standings and news tidbits from the lanes. The logical source for this info is the league secretaries. It should reach the sports desk before the news cools off. That's the dope, honest!

St. Louis, Nov. 20 (AP)—George (Whitey) Kurowski, star third baseman for the world champion Cardinals, is here for an operation to remove bone chips from his right elbow. The operation will be performed Friday by Dr. R. F. Hyland, Cardinals' surgeon.

Kurowski's home is at Reading, Pa.

Basketball Tickets Rationed By U. of M. In Seat Allocation

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 20 (AP)—University of Michigan, which rarely has attracted as many as 5,000 fans to its basketball games in the past, announced plans today for the "rationing" of spectator space during the 1946-47 season when all of its eight home games are expected to fill the 6,744 seats in Yost Field House.

With 18,513 regularly enrolled students, and 5,000 additional fans representing the university faculty, administrative employees and wives of GI students, Michigan has made its basketball season pretty much a "closed" affair, with students allocated all the seats for six of the games and the general public admitted only to two games which fall during the Christmas vacation.

Each student desiring, will be admitted to two games at home, on a seat-allocation basis proposed by the new university student legislature and approved by the athletic department. Any seats not occupied by 7 p. m. by eligible fans will be thrown open to students who were not originally slated to witness that particular game.

Games to which the general public will be admitted are the Dec. 19 date with Stanford and Jan. 4 game with Northwestern.

Ace Passer Returns To Spartan Lineup

East Lansing, Nov. 20 (AP)—Russell B. Reader, Michigan State College halfback and ace passer who has done nothing more than fumble twice—in two different games—since injuring his knee in the Kentucky game 18 days ago, may get back into the Spartans lineup here Saturday against the University of Maryland.

Reader has returned to regular practice duty this week and said today that his knee felt like it could stand up under game conditions. "It still feels a little stiff, but it doesn't hurt any more," Reader said.

Return of Reader to the lineup would bolster State's passing game against the Terrapins, who employ the T-formation with flankers and men in motion exclusively. Although he hasn't thrown a pass in the last two and a half games, Reader still leads Spartan tossers with 16 completions in 39 attempts for 273 yards.

The M.S.C. squad worked on its running offense again Wednesday and set up a defense against Maryland plays executed by a "B" team.

TIGER PITCHER GETS HIS BUCK

Score Of Deaths Listed As Deer Season Nears Half-Year Mark

(By The Associated Press)

A 12-year-old Gladwin boy was shot to death Wednesday as the deer hunting season reached nine equal to the number shot to death during the 15-day season in 1945. Wednesday was the sixth day of the present season which ends Dec. 1.

Police said a hunter told him he fired at Elmer Graves when he mistook the boy for a deer as the youngster prowled through a Gladwin dump.

The death of Graves and Arthur G. Clark, 63, of Battle Creek, the latter the victim of a heart attack Wednesday while hunting at Long Lake near Harrison in Lenawee county, brought the total season death toll to 20.

Twenty-six hunters died from all causes in the 1945 season.

Pitcher Hal Newhouse of the Detroit Tigers put aside thoughts of baseball long enough to join Michigan's army of deer hunters and bag himself a speakehorn buck.

This was disclosed Wednesday when the big left-hander arrived at Newberry with the deer, which he shot at Camp Nine, 20 miles northeast of Newberry.

Meanwhile, as thousands of hunters trudged through the state's northern woodlands on the sixth day of the 15-day deer season, the 19th fatality of the hunting period was listed.

He was Arthur G. Clark, 63, of Battle Creek, who was stricken with a heart attack Wednesday while hunting at Long Lake, near Harrison in Lenawee county. He had made annual trips to the deer area over a 40-year period.

Weather bureau forecasters at Detroit predicted light snow flurries for most of the Upper Peninsula hunting area on Thursday but said hunters on the Lower Peninsula would not encounter any more snow Thursday.

The conservation department at Marquette reported late Wednesday that John Hawthorne, 70-year-old Hawthorne hunter has been missing since 11 a. m. Monday and that searching parties are combing the area south of Topaz in Ontonagon county in an effort to locate him.

Rice Star Named Lineman Of Week

BY TED MEIER

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—Weldon Humble isn't humble when it comes to playing football guard for Rice Institute at Houston, Tex. He played his greatest game of the year against the Texas Aggies on Saturday, a performance that earned him today the honor of being "lineman of the week" in the weekly Associated Press poll.

Listen to these two Aggie coaches rave about Humble:

Bill James, Aggie line coach: "Humble must have been in on at least half of Rice's tackles. He is very smart, knows when to float wide, when to drive through, when to drop back on pass defense."

Botchey Koch, assistant Aggie coach: "I saw Army play Oklahoma. Both teams offered great linemen, but in my book Humble far outclasses any lineman Army or Oklahoma offered."

Michigan End Bob Mann caught three forward passes for 74 yards, two for touchdowns, and also gained 26 yards on two end-around plays against Wisconsin.

The list of linemen nominated this week included: Ends—Mann, Michigan. Guards—Gerometta, Army.

BIRDS EYE HAS LOG SHORTAGE

Woods Roads Boggled By Rain; Cold Weather Is Needed

Supply of veneer logs at the Birds Eye Veneer company in Escanaba is now at the lowest point in the last 10 years, company officials reported yesterday.

The mill has continued in operation on a curtailed basis with a trickle of logs, but sharp drop in temperature is required to freeze logging roads before an ample supply can be hauled from the woods.

Company officials indicated that there are plenty of logs available in the woods and that the shortage will be alleviated as soon as road conditions permit. Excessive
